

THE ROYAL
SOCIETY
OF EDINBURGH

Christmas Lecture

AN INTERACTIVE 'LIVE' WEBCAST

Reporting the World in an Age of Conflict

Allan Little, BBC World Affairs Correspondent

For over two decades, Allan Little has been reporting the changing shape of our world from “a seat in the front row of history”.

Join him live online as he describes some of the key moments from his career and answers your questions about what it is like to report the world in an age of conflict.

Friday
10 December
2010
2.15pm

BBC Scotland

Reporting the World in an Age of Conflict

---

RSE teams up with BBC Scotland

The RSE has teamed up with BBC Scotland to webcast its prestigious Annual Christmas Lecture live across the UK. This groundbreaking initiative will allow viewers to both see and hear Allan Little, the distinguished BBC World Affairs Correspondent, deliver this year's lecture live from Stranraer Academy on Friday 10 December.

Want to be involved?

Taking part is free and open to everyone.

To find out more about Allan, his talk and how to register for this exciting event go to: www.royalsoced.org.uk/schools/xmas.htm

Once you register, you will receive an email before the event, with a link to the webpage on which the talk will take place and further instructions on how you can put questions to Allan live!

Get your class together or even the whole year group to take part in this UK-wide live event!

---

Curriculum Links:

Scotland: S5/S6 Higher and Advanced Higher Politics, Media Studies, English: Reading the Media (Advanced Higher), Modern Studies, Religious Studies, Philosophy

England, Wales and Northern Ireland: 5th/6th year A Level: Government and Politics, History, Media Studies, English, Religious Studies

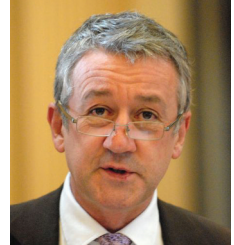

The Royal Society of Edinburgh, Scotland's National Academy, is Scottish Charity No. SC000470

THE ROYAL
SOCIETY
OF EDINBURGH

Christmas Lecture

AN INTERACTIVE 'LIVE' WEBCAST

Reporting the World in an Age of Conflict

Allan Little, BBC World Affairs Correspondent

For over two decades, Allan Little has been reporting the changing shape of our world from “a seat in the front row of history”.

Join him live online as he describes some of the key moments from his career and answers your questions about what it is like to report the world in an age of conflict.

Friday
10 December
2010
2.15pm

BBC Scotland

Reporting the World in an Age of Conflict

---

RSE teams up with BBC Scotland

The RSE has teamed up with BBC Scotland to webcast its prestigious Annual Christmas Lecture live across the UK. This groundbreaking initiative will allow viewers to both see and hear Allan Little, the distinguished BBC World Affairs Correspondent, deliver this year's lecture live from Stranraer Academy on Friday 10 December.

Want to be involved?

Taking part is free and open to everyone.

To find out more about Allan, his talk and how to register for this exciting event go to: www.royalsoced.org.uk/schools/xmas.htm

Once you register, you will receive an email before the event, with a link to the webpage on which the talk will take place and further instructions on how you can put questions to Allan live!

Get your class together or even the whole year group to take part in this UK-wide live event!

---

Curriculum Links:

Scotland: S5/S6 Higher and Advanced Higher Politics, Media Studies, English: Reading the Media (Advanced Higher), Modern Studies, Religious Studies, Philosophy

England, Wales and Northern Ireland: 5th/6th year A Level: Government and Politics, History, Media Studies, English, Religious Studies

The Royal Society of Edinburgh, Scotland's National Academy, is Scottish Charity No. SC000470